

I just want to say that things should be left as they are. All of these smaller companies will lose business if they can not provide DSL anymore. It would create more of a monopoly so to speak. It is nice having choices as a consumer. People may lose jobs and that is not a good thing to do. These bigger telco companies (e.g. Bell South, SBC, etc.) make plenty of money as is, no reason to kill off some smaller companies that are actually doing business with them anyways. Please let everything be!! Thanks